A BLOODY AFFAIR.

A Battle Between a Kentucky Mob and a Guard of Soldiers.

Several Killed and a Large Number Wounded.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 1.—While the troops who were guarding Neal and Crafts, the Ashland murderers, on their way to the steamer Granite State to-day, they were attacked by a mob. The prisoners and troops got safely on board the steamer, when the mob seized a train and headed off the boat at Ashland, Ky., where another attack was made. The troops returned the fire, and again a number of the mob were killed and wounded. So far as known, only three soldiers were wounded, and they but slightly.

Private despatches received in this city place the number of killed at five, and the wounded at thirty. The steamer Granite State has passed Portsmouth, and unless the fog prevents, will reach Maysville to-night, when the prisoners will be transferred to the railroad to be taken to Lexington.

The proposed reduction is $10,786.75. The actual expense for cartage, rents and incidentals for the last fiscal year was $120,990.40; estimate for this is $133,000. The office of deputy collector at Hingham and Cohasset may be abandoned. Pay of inspectors should be increased from $3.50 to $4 per diem. The name of the district should be changed from Boston and Charles to district of Boston. Office of surveyor should be abolished and deputy surveyor at $3,000 salary.

The Jeannette Expedition Hearing.

The narrative of the Jeannette expidition after leaving Bennett Island was continued today by Lieut. Danenhower. He stated that the first active search for DeLong's party was begun Friday, Oct. 14th. The boats separated, he said because it was less dangerous than trying to keep in one another's company. Had he been in command he would have struck for the coast and sailed towards Behring's Strait in hope of falling in with whalers He blamed nobody in the expedition. All did their best. He specially commended seamen Ninderman, Noros, Herbert Leach, Warren and Cole and Firemen James H. Barlett.

The following was the examination in detail:

Q.—You have spoken of Capt. De Long as standing up in his boat and signaling to the boats to separate. What did you suppose his object to be in desiring a separation?

A.—The state of the weather and all their circumstances determined each boat should take care of itself, as reducing sail and endeavoring to keep together endangered the safety of all. It was the most natural thing to do.

Q.—What kind of weather were the two cutters making when you last saw them?

A.—In the afternoon it was remarked that the second cutter was doing better than the whaleboat. The first cutter also seemed to be doing as well as the whaleboat.

Q.—Was it possible for the boats to be of any assistance to each other?

A.—In my judgment it would have been very dangerous, but it would have been our duty to try, had we seen either of the boats swamp.

Q.—What would you have done if in command if you had taken 60 days' rations on leaving the Jeannette?

A.—I would have made at once for the coast water, and then if the weather had been as good as is usual at that time of the year I would have made for Behring Straits in the expectation of meeting some whaler or relief expedition.

Q.—Have you any charge to lay or special commendation to offer as to any officer or man connected with the expedition?

A.—I have no charge to make against any officer or person connected with the expedition. I believe every person did his best. As to special commendation I would mention Seamen Ninderman and Noros, also Seamen Herbert, Leach and First-class Fireman James H. Barlett, as well as Seaman Henry D. Warren and John Cole. The above named were the leading men during the journey.

The examination of Lieut. Danenhower was considered today and the Judge Advocate began reading to the witness the record of his evidence, from Oct. 14th to date. As this covers 280 pages of legal cap, it will probably occupy the time of the court until Friday, when Chief Engineer Melville will be called.

The Ghost of a Senator.

The ghost story of the nights is to the effect that the home of the late Senator Matt Carpenter is haunted by his spirit; that no one cares to live in it. If he haunted any place, it would be his old law office, where he spent so many nights.

The Garfield Fair.

There is every indication that the coming season will be socially a very brilliant one. The Garfield Memorial Fair, which will last for a week immediately preceding the opening of the session of Congress, is expected to attract large numbers of visitors to the city, and judging from what is now known of the intended exhibits the fair will repay a thorough inspection. Many choice and rare articles will also be on sale.

Estimates for the Post Office Department.

Newspaper Changes.

Hallett Kilbourne has disposed of his interest in the National Republican. First Assistant Postmaster-General Hatton, a stockholder and one of the directors, will succeed Kilbourne in the general management. It is also understood that the interest of Gen. Brady in the Evening Critic has been purchased by A. C. Buell and M. D. H. Ilin.

A Specimen of the Modern Reformer.

Gen. Simon G. Griffin is posting the nomination of Samuel W. Hale in New Hampshire because, as he says, money was used to nominate him, and money is to be expected to elect him. On the 30th of January, 1873, when he himself was a candidate for Congress, he wrote the following letter to Wm. E. Chandler:

My Dear Sir:—I write to ask you to do what you can to assist me in our coming campaign. You are aware that my district is much closer than either of the others, and the opposition are determined to defeat me if possible. (Then follows an appeal for speakers.) Our state committee (confidential) is terribly inefficient. For God's sake lend us a helping hand. Furthermore we need the sinews of war. New Hampshire is the first state to vote after the Presidential election, and it ought to be shown that she sustains the action of last fall. Something is absolutely necessary to save the State. I have written so much that ought not to be seen please consider the whole letter confidential. Hoping to hear a good report from you soon, I am as ever, sincerely yours.

FURTHER PARTICULARS

Of the Triple Murder and Suicide in New York.

THE CONDITION OF DR. SEGUIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The following additional particulars are given of the Seguin horror: The family lived in a five-story brown stone front, English basement house, elegantly furnished. The room in which the tragedy took place is on the fifth floor, and is scarcely ever used by the family. The three servants in the house noticed during the day, that Mrs. Seguin was moody, a condition she had been in for several weeks, and which her brother, Dr. Amidon, termed "the blues." About 11 o'clock she called upon him and said she did not feel well, and had written Dr. Henry Draper, who had been invited to dine with the family, to defer his visit. This note she asked her brother to send. He took it jokingly, and told her they would all enjoy themselves. Dr. Amidon called on his sister at 3 o'clock, and was told she had gone out for a walk. He returned at 5 o'clock, but Mrs. Seguin had not yet returned. The hall boy incidentally mentioned that the spare room was locked and the key gone. A sudden suspicion seized the doctor that Mrs. Seguin had gone to Central Park and drowned herself and her children. He could not explain why he thought this. He immediately went up stairs and burst the door open. A horrible sight met his eyes. Almost in the middle of the floor lay the dead body of the oldest boy, (Edward) in a pool of blood. He was shot through the head. Partly in the closet lay Mrs. Seguin, grasping in her right hand a big, pearl-handled Remington revolver beside the closet lay the boy John, and the girl Jeanette. They, too, were shot through the head. Their faces bore a peaceful, even a roguish look, as though they had been killed while at play. Each child was blindfolded and had its hands tied behind. There could be no doubt that the mother had enticed them into the room on the pretense of playing "blindman's buff." She had led the two youngest into the closet and locked them in, while she murdered the oldest boy. The pistol with which he was shot was a target practice weapon, with a barrel eleven inches long. It lay beside him and the bullet lay on the floor. It had passed through his head. The maniac mother then proceeded to the closet, and with the heavy 32-calibre Remington revolver, with which she afterwards blew out her own brains, shot the other two children.

Dr. Amidon cut out the strips that bound the children's hands and laid them on the bed. The police and coroner were notified at once. Nothing was found in the room to explain the motive for the terrible crime. The maniac had held the weapon close to her victims' heads, for the handkerchiefs on their faces had been set on fire. The face of the little girl wore a look of innocent surprise that cut more deeply than any other feature of the dreadful deed. On the table lay a box of cartridges and a third pistol.

Dr. Seguin, when he returned, was taken to his office and physicians called. He acted as though his faculties were gone. He caught sight of a photograph of his children on the wall, and broke into a horrible wailing cry, that wrung the hearts of the listeners. The physicians fear he will lose his reason. None of the servants had heard any noise. Sudden insanity is the only motive known for the deed. When found, Mrs. Seguin was neatly dressed. The children were loved and petted by all who knew them, and comprised the entire family of the unfortunate couple.

Large crowds flocked to the residence of Dr. Seguin today, and policemen stationed there had difficulty to keep the passage clear. Dr. Seguin is completely prostrated, and graves fears are said to be entertained regarding his mind. He passed a bad night, and had to be quieted by strong hypodermic injections of morphia. Dr. Amidon denied any insanity in the family. An inquest will be held this afternoon. The date of the funerals has not yet been fixed.

NEW YORK.

Rallying From Their Defeat.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The National Rifle Association has addressed a letter to the National Rifle Association of Great Britain in relation to a return match to be shot at Wimbleton in 1883, in which they request a modification and alterations of conditions as follows:

1. The use of a wind guage.
2. The use of the barley corn sight of practical strength, thin at the base as approved by the war department in 1879, in use in the United States army and as approved by the national guard of various States.
3. Enlistments on or before January 1, 1883, to make national guardsmen eligible.

Suit Brought Against Stock Brokers.

In John R. Duff's suit against William J. Hutchinson and George H. Kennedy, stock brokers, for an accounting of stock transactions carried on by the defendants as copartners as his brokers from 1875 to 1881. Mr. Elihu Root, for Mr. Duff, asked Judge Daniels yesterday for an inspection of their books. The suit has been begun by the service of a summons, and the plaintiff says in his petition that the inspection asked for is necessary to enable him to frame his complaint. He says that the defendants fraudulently concealed from him various transactions, the results of which were to his benefit, and upon which they are now indebted to him to the extent of over $1,000,000. Mr. Joseph H. Choate appearing for the defendants opposed the application. Judge Daniels reserved his decision.

Arrival of a Astronomical Committee.

Dr. Gustav Muller, Assistant the Astro-Physical Observatory, Potsday, Dr. Fritz Deich Muller of the Observatory at Bonn, Julius Bauschinger, Scientific Assistant, and Herman Deichmuller, members of the Imperial German Commission sent to this country to witness the transit of Venus, Dec. 6th, arrived to-day. They go Hartford where they will make their observation.

Will Not Present a Claim.

Henry George denies the statement that he proposes to bring a claim against the British government.

A Sensational Scene.

At 1.45 p. m., great excitement was occasioned in Dey street, near Broadway, opposite the Western Union building, by the explosion of two or three railroad torpedoes. A crowd of them was being unloaded from a truck in front of L. G. Tillotson's, when it slipped and fell on the stone pavement, causing the exploding. No damage was done further than the breaking of a large pane of glass in Tillotson's. The crowd had scarcely been dispersed after the first explosion, when at 2 p. m. another report was heard, coming from the other side of Broadway, in Dey street, a distance of a block from where the first occurred. The latter was caused by a wagon running over another torpedo, which had probably been stolen by boys and thrown into the street.

The New York and Western Press Associations Separate.

The formal separation between the Western Associated Press and the New York Associated Press, which has so long been threatening, takes place to-morrow. The Western Press Association has established independent agencies of its own throughout the country, and refuses and declines all further exchange of business relations of any kind with the New York Associated Press. It is intimated that two newspapers belonging to the New York Associated Press will join the Western Press in its new departure. Mr. Walter P. Phillips, formerly the very efficient agent of the New York Associated Press here, takes charge of the Washington agency from Nov 1. Mr. Isaac Boynton, for many years the New York agent of the Western Associated Press, will represent that association in its enlarged field in New York, and the Western Press will maintain new agents and an independent bureau in some of the principle cities of the West. The Western Press, however, claims as its exclusive territory the Western and Pacific slope States, with Texas. An agency has been established in London. The expectations here is that there will be an animated contest between the two associations. This is the final result of the negotiations which have so long been pending between Mr. Gould and the different Press Associations, in which the New York Associated Press would have no part. The two members of the New York Associated Press which rumor states may join the Western Association are the World and the Tribune.

MR. DICKSON EXPLAINS.

And the Rule of Court is Discharged.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Wm. D Cassidy filed his sworn answer to the rule laid upon him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for writing a letter to the foreman of the jury. He admits that he did send the letter in question, but in so doing averse that he did not intend any contempt to the court nor did he suppose or believe that in so doing his action would be regarded by the court as being in contempt expressed or implied. He further states that he sent the letter in the pursuance of and by the advice of his counsel, and after having failed in all other means recommended by his counsel to bring to justice said Henry C. Bowen referred to in the letter latter in the day Justice Wylie took up the matter and said he thought the rule should be discharged and so ordered. The grand jury was to-day excused from duty for one week from Monday next.

THE BRIBERY CASE.

Col. Ingersoll on the Witness Stand.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SECOND DAY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—In the police court today the hearing of the Payne bribery case was resumed. Col. Ingersoll was called and questioned relative to the so-called "Ingersoll interview." He said the only affidavits actually in his possion when that interview was published were those of Brown, Laws, Holmead and Foote. He had declined to deliver these affidavits to Gen. Wells on the ground that he was not the proper custodian of them. Payne could be prosecuted in this or any other court, but it was unfair to try him and let his employer go free.

Col. Ingersoll said he gave Payne advice in relation to making affidavits, but declined to say what it was.

Richards was then placed on the stand and asked if he made the affidavit ascribed to him, and he replied in the affirmative, adding that it was true in every particular. What passed between Payne and himself he regarded as confidential and declined to divulge it.

No consideration was offered Foote for making his affidavit, and it was understood it was to remain in the witness' possession until corroborated by one from Payne. The witness knew of the letter from Foote to Dorsey demanding $1000 in return for papers. This letter was delivered to Dorsey by Payne. The witness was positive he told Foote nothing that could be construed into offer of compensation.

NATIONAL PROHIBITIONISTS

Meeting of Clergymen Yesterday at Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—A convention of clergymen of various denominations on behalf of the proposed amendment to the Constitution against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, was held at Park street church today. It was called to order by the Rev. Dr. Dorchester, and prayer was offered by the Rev J. M. Gray, of the Reformed Episcopal Church A committee was appointed on permanent organization, the Rev. L. B. Bates being chairman. Pending the report of the committee, the Rev. Dr. Dorchester gave a historical sketch of the temperance movement. The convention then organized with Rev. Dr. J. L Withrow of Boston as president. Dr. Withrow delivered a brief address, in which he pointed out that all great reforms had come through the influence of the church.

The Rev. David Sherman of Hopkinton was introduced as the first speaker. He expressed admiration for the plan of reform by peaceful agitation, which had been originated by the English people, instead of the old time system of reform, by bloodshed and destruction. He believed that the proposed method of meeting the liquor traffic had various advantages, especially as it would draw out the full strength of temperance workers. The Rev Dr A. J. Patterson was the next speaker and denounced the evils of intoxicating liquors in unmeasured terms, and claimed that no language could picture their destructive effects. He believed that the constitutional amendment was the best means of attacking the liquor traffic.

The chairman explained that when he spoke of political parties he did not mean to give the impression that one party was as good as another. As a citizen he would earnest y favor the man who came from a prohibitory town and was himself a prohibitionist.

The Rev. Mark Trafton narrated in a facetious and entertaining style, his early experience in the total abstinence work in Maine, and recalled the fact that Neal Dow derived his idea of the prohibitory law in that State from his preaching. The speaker then made early attempts at prohibition in New England, and pointed out that the prohibitory law of Massachusetts in 1851, failed, owing to indifference in the enforcement. In closing, he strongly urged the necessity of harmony in the work for temperance. The Rev. Dr. Woodworth of East Providence, bore greetings from the convention of the Rhode Island Temperance Union.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Negro Finds a Fortune Through the Law.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 1.—In 1834, John Gross, or DeGross as he was sometimes called, a colored man, owned land in various parts of this city. Immediately after Brooklyn became a city, in 1834, the common council opened and laid out Myrtle avenue, as it now is, John Gross purchased from the city a piece of land adjoining his, which had been condemned and taken in the laying out of the avenue, and by its purchase he became the owner of all the southeast corner of Myrtle avenue and Navy street, the plot being 101 feet on Myrtle avenue and 50 feet on Navy street. He occupied it up to 1840, when it passed into the possession of Theodorus Bergen, another old Brooklynite, long since passed away. Gross, about that time, became mentally deranged, and wandered off no one knew whither, until his family received word of his death in New York city upwards of thirty years ago. He left three children, two of whom, John and Sarah, are living, and in December, 1878, they commenced action to recover, and after a long trial, the case was decided in their favor. An appeal was taken to the judges, at the general term, who reversed Judge Reynolds' decision and sent the case back for trial. On the new trial the case went to the jury, who returned a verdict for plaintiffs, but on appeal to the general term this was reversed. On the next trial the jury gave a verdict for defendants. On appeal by plaintiffs this was reversed. The next trial was before Judge Neilson, who pronounced the case one of the most extraordinary within his experience. The jury rendered a verdict for plaintiffs. This trial, which occurred in September, 1880, is still subject of remark among the frequenters of the city court. The defendants appealed again in the general term, but this last verdict was affirmed, and John Gross will be put in possession. He has heretofore done odd jobs at white-washing and the like. He is also a shoeblack on Sundays. He lives at No. 12 Mumby's alley, and is well known about town under the name of "Snowball." The property is valued at $50,000.

LABOR TROUBLES.

Mill Owners and Iron Workers Fail to Agree.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Representatives of the Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers of this district, President Jarrett, and the mill owners who failed to agree upon a schedule for next year, have been holding another meeting in this city for the past three days. An agreement was reached last night on a scale of reduction of 21 per cent compared with prevailing prices. The workers, however, are firm in demanding that this agreement be subject to a revision May 1st. The mill owners are equally firm in demanding that the agreement should cover the entire year, and the conferences has adjourned without a perfect understanding. As two months yet remains before the time for the proposed new schedule to go into effect it is believed an agreement will be reached.

Vogle pleaded guilty when arraigned, and was sentenced to fourteen years imprisonment. NATIONAL THANKSGIVING.

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

In conformity with custom the annual observance of which is justly held in honor by this people I Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States do hereby set apart Thursday, the 30th day of November next as a day of public Thanksgiving. The blessings demanding our gratitude are manifold and varied; for peace and amity which subsists between this republic and all and one of the earth; for freedom from internal discord and violence; for increasing friendship between different sections of the land; for liberty, justice and constitutional government; for the devotion of the people to our free institutions and their cheerful obedience to mild laws; for constantly increasing strength of the republic while extending its privileges to all men who come to us; for improved means of internal communication and increased facilities of intercourse with other nations; for the general prevailing health of the year, for the general prosperity of all our industries and the liberal return for the mechanic's toil, affording a market for abundant harvests of the husbandman; for preservation of the national faith and credit; for wise and generous provision for self-culture intellectual and moral education of our youth; for the influence upon the conscience of a restraining and a transforming religion and for the joys of home—for these and for many other blessings we should give thanks.

We therefore I do recommend that the day above designated be observed throughout the country as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and that the people, ceasing from their daily labors and meeting in accordance with their several forms of worship, draw near to the throne of Almighty God, offering to him praise and gratitude for the manifold goodness which he has vouchsafed to us, and praying that His blessings and His mercies may continue; and I do further recommend that the day thus appointed be made the special occasion for deeds of kindness and charity to the suffering and needy, so that all who dwell within the land may rejoice and be glad in this season of national thanksgiving.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this 25th day of October, in the year of our Lord, 1882, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and seventh.

[seal.] CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

By the President:
FREDERICK T. FRELINGHUYSEN,
Secretary of State.

MARSHAL SERRANO appears to have succeeded in organizing the new combination of political liberals in the Spanish cortes so strongly that the question now is whether Premier Sagasta, who is a Republican in sentiment, shall unite with him or be compelled to give way to him and retire from office. Serrano is an inveterate intriguer, but he is also a statesman of very high capacity.

IF there is any truth in the story that the leadership of the Conservative party is about to pass from the hands of the courteous but unaggressive Sir Stafford Northcote into those of the violent, reckless, ill-tempered and injudicious Lord Randolph Churchill, Beaconsfield's old party must be in a bad way. This young gentleman has all the aristocratic prejudices and anti-Liberal bitterness of Lord Salisbury, without a tithe of that nobleman's ability.

NORTH AMERICAN: Senator Hale's address at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening was forcible and persuasive, because of the common sense by which it was inspired and the earnestness with which it was delivered. The speaker made his hearers very clearly to understand why those who argue that there is no issue before the public at the present time as between the two regular parties, and who say that it does not matter whether the Republicans are or are not retained in power, must be either ignorant of what they are talking about or must be moved by a crafty design to accomplish some ulterior object. Let no Republican and no citizen who has at heart the welfare of this community allow himself to be thus deceived. Republican success is for many reasons essential to national prosperity.

IT is not easy to realize in the land of plenty what the opposite tidings of scant and abundant harvests in the United States, Russia, and other grain-growing countries mean to the masses of the people of Great Britain. The London papers have at last begun to publish daily price lists of agricultural produce, cotton, petroleum and provisions, having learned that there is widespread public interest in such information. Between January 1 and July 1 the price of red winter wheat in London fell from $1.43½ to $1.35, and in the next three months there was a still further decline to $1.07. All householders can appreciate what this means, and especially those of England, who are so utterly dependent on foreign crops. England is now getting meat from Australia and Russia as well as America, greatly to the astonishment and chagrin of the British farmer.

THE volcanic condition of society in Europe just at present is well calculated to excite the gravest alarm, since a trifle may at any moment precipitate a revolutionary crisis which would probably affect several nations. The riots and outbreaks in France, the attempt on the life of the King of Servia, the socialistic machinations in Germany and the revolutionary Congress in session in London, all show some signs of that Nihilistic spirit which is so intense a terror in the land of its origination. The peculiarity of this condition is that republican France is as uneasy as monarchical England, imperial Germany or autocratic Russia. It is an evidence of a feeling of popular unrest which bodes ill for ruling powers and bodies, and indicates that the reins of government have been held too tightly and with too little regard for the wishes and interests of the governed. The usual resort of alarmed tyranny, foreign war, may be attempted as a palliative, but it is doubtful whether the tocsin of revolt would not overpower the bugle blast of the call to arms.

THE French bureaux for affording outdoor relief to the poor are among the best preserved institutions of the Revolution. They were established by a law of the year V., and enlarged in scope by one of the year XI., and they proved of so great utility that two decrees of the Empire, one in 1806 and one in 1809, modified and preserved them. Subsequent enactments have still further expanded the system. The original law was curious enough. It enacted that one-tenth should be added to the price of tickets for theatres, balls or concerts, and that the fund thus provided should be used to relieve the needy. One disbursing office was provided for each commune, and in some cases two or more. Under the existing law the Mayor and the senior curé in each commune are ex officio members of the board, and the other members, five in number, are chosen one year each for five years. These charity boards are obliged to keep records of those whom they assist, with statements of the kind and amount of aid given. The disbursements are now chiefly gathered by solicitation, by boxes in the public buildings and from the churches.

THE Italian Ministry, though it has done much for the kingdom in the last seven years, still has a mission and a programme to fulfill. It has consolidated the debt, reduced taxes, improved the civil service, simplified many laws, resumed specie payments and accumulated a store of money for use in public works of various kinds. Altogether the political Italy of to-day is a very different thing from that of 1875. Premier Depretis calls the present laws sufficient to protect the national institutions, but he promises to keep a watchful eye on future needs. The direct railway between Rome and Naples is a pet of the Government's, which announces that the road is "of the highest economical importance, since it will make Naples the seaport of Rome." Depretis is not crazy, like some Europeans, for a magnificent standing army. The appropriations for the army and navy have been considerably increased of late years, and, in spite of war-talk, no further additions will be made, for, says the Premier: "The army should not be disproportionate to the economical power of the country." This statesmanlike utterance can not be too highly commended, especially as it is coupled with the declaration that many burdensome taxes, among them that on salt, must be cut off.

Two of the international polar expeditions, the Dutch and the Danish, are in hard luck. The former set out last summer for Dickson Haven, near the mouth of the Yenisei River, in Western Siberia, and the latter for Franz Josef Land. Both are now reported to have become stuck in the ice of the Kara Sea, much after the fashion of the "Jeannette."

A Simple Experiment.

By Dr. B. N. Richardson of London.

I was able to convey a considerable amount of conviction to an intelligent scholar a little time ago by a simple experiment. I was in his house, and he was extoling wine and singing its praises. He sang:

"Life is cheq'ered o'er with woe,
Bid the ruddy bumper flow,
Wine is the soul of man below."

He sang that to me in order, as he said, to raise my flagging spirits. I said, "You sing that song well; why not begin with wine at breakfast and give it to your servants?" "My dear friend," he said, "I couldn't get through the day, I should be as seedy as possible; and as for my servants, if I gave it to them I don't know what would happen." "Then, when do you take it?" I asked. "When the cares of the day are over then's the time for a few glasses of wine and a night cap." "Will you," I said, "be good enough to feel my pulse as I stand here?" He did. "Count it carefully. What does it say!" "Your pulse says 74." I then sat down in a chair. "Will you count it now?" "Your pulse has gone down. Your pulse is now 70." I then lay down on the lounge and said, "Will you take it again? What is it?" "Why, it is only 64! What an extraordinary thing!" What is the effect of position on the pulse?" "When you lie down at night, that is the way nature gives your heart rest. You know nothing about it, but that beating organ is resting to that extent, and if you reckon it up it is a great deal of rest, because in lying down my heart is doing ten strokes per minute. Multiply that by 60, and it is 600; multiply it by eight hours, and within a fraction it is 5,000 strokes different, and as my heart is throwing six ounces of blood at every stroke, it makes a difference of 30,000 ounces of lifting during a night." "That is a curious fact, but what has it to do with me?" "When I lie down at night without the alcohol, that is the rest my heart gets, but when you take your wine or grog you do not allow that rest, for the influence of alcohol is to increase the number of strokes, and instead of getting this rest you put on something like 15,000 extra strokes, and the result is you rise up very seedy, as you yourself have said, with the result of a restless night, and unfit the next day for work, until you have taken a little of the wine which kills the "ruddy bumper" and which you say is the soul of man below." His wife said "That is perfectly true." "The night is attended with a degree of unrest, and broken sleep which I can hardly describe, and which gives one very much anxiety." He began to reckon up those figures, and think what it meant lifting up an ounce, so many thousand times, and in the result he became a total abstainer, with every benefit to his health, and as he admits to his happiness.

I would like those who speak of wine, or any stimulant, as something to be taken at night to give a night's sleep and comfort, just to take the opposite side of the question into consideration, and see how these two positions fit in together.

An Angel in the Counting-Room.

"I would like to have an advertisement inserted."

This is a slogan that would resurrect a dead man behind a newspaper counter, and the clerk turned as it moved like an electric current and ejaculated:

"Yesser; want the top of the column, I s'pose?"

"No, I am not particular," said the advertiser.

"Want it inside next leading editorial?"

"Either page will answer," replied the other.

"Want a cut of a death's head and marrow bones, or a sore leg, to make it attractive, or a portrait of the advertiser with long hair and a turn-down shirt collar?"

"Clear type, black ink, and white paper are good enough for me," was the response.

"All right; want head-line in type an inch longer than Jenkins' ad. in next column, or will you have it put in upside down, or your name in crooked letters like forked lightening all over it?"

"No; a plain, straightforward advertisement in space of four inches will answer my purpose."

"Good enough. Want about ten inches of notice free, don't you? Family history; how your grandfather blacked Washington's boots once; mention of yourself as a member of a circulating library, church, fire company, co-operative store, base-ball club, and other important public positions?"

The customer said he did not care for any notice.

"Of course," said the clerk, you want a free paper sent to each member of the firm; one for yourself, and the privilege of taking half a dozen copies off the counter every week for the next year or two because you advertise?"

The gentleman expected to pay for his paper, and asked the price of the advertisement.

The delighted clerk figured it up, and then asked:

"If we send you the bill around in about a year you can tell the boy when to call again, can't you?"

"No; I will pay you now," said the other, taking out a roll of bills.

The newspaper man's eyes bulged as he said: "Ah! you want to ask for seventy-five per cent. off for cash?"

"I am ready to pay a fair price for value received. Tell me your regular rates and here is the money."

A beatific expression spread over the wan face of the worn clerk, and he murmured:

"Stranger, when did you come down, and when do you expect the Apostles along?"

A Glimpse of Tilden.

[N. Y. Correspondence of Philadelphia Record.]

I was coming out of Scribner's bookstore on Wednesday when I noticed a very old man getting out of a coach at the door. I don't know when I have seen a feebler or older old man. He was being assisted to alight by the driver of the coach, a common hack, without whose assistance he could not have made his way. He was very thin, very pale, and his cheeks and eyes were sunken so deep that I wondered why a man in his delicate condition was allowed to go about alone. As he walked, or rather tottered, to the door of the store, I noticed that his hands shook with the palsy. Indeed, I was half inclined to offer him my arm, but I caught an expression of his eye which seemed to say that, feeble though he was, he could take care of himself. There was something more than this in the expression of his eye. There was a glance—a sort of round the corner expression—that I had certainly seen burlesqued. I was so haunted by this look that I went back into the store and looked at him across a pile of books to see if I could not remember where I had seen that look before.

He went to the English side of the house and began examining some recent importations as well as his trembling hands would let him. Couldn't be Alexander H. Stephens; he was pretty well broken up. No, this one was too neat for the Southerner; his hair was too well brushed. At last it flashed across me who it was; but even then I couldn't believe my suspicions. I went up to one of the clerks and said: "It isn't possible that that feeble old man over there is—" "Samuel J. Tilden," was the reply. True enough, it was Uncle Sammy himself. But what a change! His worst enemy would be melted at the sight of him now. Physically he is a complete wreck. They say his mind is pretty clear, but I notice that he speaks with great hesitation, and seems to forget what he began to say. If there is anything in appearances, the teeth and nails of the lion have been pulled out. He is harmless now, unless it be to hit a few pats with his maimed paw.

An Unpolished Poet.

[St James Gazette.]

People who work much among the poor seem to discover many pleasing incidents for relation. In my school I had some experiences. Young people, whom a wild poet has called the "litter of Cain," are slow in understanding abstract morality. The sharp lads got on to read long words, and the intellectual development of some of these bright ones interested me greatly. One stolid youth, with a large jowl and fine eyes, was very delighted when he first read poetry. He had heard songs before, and, like the rest of his comrades, could sing a good many; but he had no idea how the jingle of the rhymes was produced. He seemed to brood a good deal over his discovery, and by the time he had finished his third reading book he began to make experiments in verse. I am grieved to say that his productions showed no indication of poetical faculty. The lines which came right as to accent were mostly without much meaning. Added to this, he had reasoned himself into a belief that in poetry you only need to get the last words to sound alike; so whenever he was in difficulty he extricated himself by the simple expedient of coining a word of his own. This invention he inserted at the end of his line, and then viewed the composition with undisturbed satisfaction. Among the words which he proposed to add to the language were bapple, clup, champoast, moug, scutcler, and others equally fanciful. I used to preserve his poems, but only a few remain in my memory now. One adventuous quatrain ran:

And then my brother said to him,
"I will not take the apple;"
"And farewell Henry" said my dear friend,
"We must be quickly bapple."

The fault manifested here was not eliminated from his poetic manner until he grew clever enough not to write at all. He is now an auctioneer's clerk.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC FOR COOKING.

Extract from "Public Ledger," Philadelphia, Oct. 7, '82.

THE NEW OLIVE BUTTER

is excellent for frying purposes. There's something in a name, but probably no thing of the "olive" in the butter except its color; but, besides being assured by chemists that this is a perfectly pure vegetable oil, all house-keepers who have tried it will agree that it is extremely economical, and makes a very delicate frying material. Here was formerly the situation in the kitchen over the frying pan: You could take lard, which was not cheap, and "used up" very fast; you had butter, which, besides being expensive, required a skilful cook to keep it from burning; or you could use salad oil, which, though costing alarmingly to begin with, required so little to do the work that the cooking school would tell you it was like the widow's cruse it did not seem to lose perceptibly; after trying fifty oysters the bottle was nearly as full as before. But very few American housekeepers could be brought, by its first expensiveness, to try using sweet oil which is the frying material of all south Europe. We leave out of the list "clarified fat," or dripping, because there is seldom enough of this to do the entire cooking with, even with a conscientious person in the kitchen who understands how to save and use it all, as it should always be insisted on. The two best-known vegetable oils that this country produces are cotton seed oil and peanut oil, both of which are understood to have been for years exported to Europe, coming back to us in wicker-covered flasks as Italian olive oil. Real olive oil from California is to small a product as yet to count much in the home market. The manufacturers of the new olive butter—which is not butter at all, but a clear greenish oil—have agreed to give us a home product, warranted pure, without the ocean voyage; though, to conciliate our ridiculous American prejudices, do not label it cotton seed or peanut oil, the former of which it probably is. Anybody who tries it, will agree that it cooks as well as lard or; and as all vegetable oils heat at lower temperature than the solid animal fats, it does not burn away or waste as rapidly as lard. It comes in convenient cans with a mouthpiece, like the kerosene oil can, so that you can pour off just the desired quantity for use, and, after cooking, this can be carefully strained and returned to the can, except it has been used for fish, when it must be put in a separate bottle and kept apart for this use. It has a slightly pungent smell when cooking which is said to be entirely removed by the use of a pinch of salt, but which is no worse than other frying through the house. The egg plants, oysters, clam or corn fritters that are turned out of olive butter by a good cook, have not a particle of greasiness about them, nor any taste whatever of the medium in which they are fried.

For Cooking Purposes is BETTER THAN LARD, FULLY EQUAL TO BUTTER, AND COSTS MUCH LESS THAN EITHER.

A CASE OF LUNG DISEAS ECURED BY PINO-PALMINE. NO ME ICINE USED.

AGENT AROMATIC PINO-PALMINE MATTRESS Co.

This is to certify that my son had been very much out of health for the past three years. He raised blood, spring and fall, and became very thin. Dr. Clapp, of Pawtucket, examined him and said his lungs were diseased. I, as well as others, thought he had the consumption. I bought a Pino-Palmine Mattress of your agent, Mr. Gleason. Now, after six months' use, my son seems to be about well; he is gaining flesh; (he says he is all right); he is at his work again; he has used nothing else to help him since using the Pino-Palmine Mattress and Pillows. I think it but right that others should know the wonderful effects the Pino-Palmine has on the sick, especially those suffering from lung diseases.

Truly yours,
RACHAEL ROBERTS,

WHAT A SUFFERER FROM NEURALGIA AND SLEEPLESSNE SAYS.

AGENTS PINO-PALMINE CO.

GENTLEMEN—I have been troubled with various ailments, sleeplessness and neuralgia are those from which I have suffered the most. At one time I was seven nights in succession without sleep. I was also a great sufferer from neuralgia of the heart, and other parts of the body. I have tried different physicians, but have received no lasting benefit. After great persuasion I bought one of the Pino-Palmine Mattresses, from which I have received great benefit. The neuralgia is all gone. I sleep well and am cured of all nervous complaints.

A BOSTON MERCHANT.

AROMATIC PINO-PALMINE CO.

GENTLEMEN—In January, 1880, I purchased a Pino-Palmine Mattress, through recommendation of your Mr. Stewart. Inasmuch as I have had a perfect trial of the same, I cheerfully say that the cramps in my limbs, and p ursy, which I have been subject to in the past, are strangers to me now. Nor have I had any symptoms of the same during this past cold winter. I still sleep on the Pino-Palmine Mattress, and think a fair trial will show same results to others. You can refer any of your enquirers to me.

Respectfully yours,
C. E. STEPHENSON.

The day was celebrated by the Catholic and Episcopal churches. To-day is All Souls.

GLAD GREETING.

A Former Portland Citizen Handsomely Remembered.

Rev. E. B. Furbush, (son of the late Dependence Furbish of this city and a former resident), the pastor of the Congregational Church in Lockport, N. Y., returned from his pleasant tour in California lately from Buffalo, and was received with a cordial and surprising welcome by the members of his church, whose generous hearts and hands had been active during his absence. After he was sufficiently rested, a walk to his new residence upon Genesee street, which is about completed was suggested. The walk was taken and Mr. Furbush expressed himself as highly pleased with its exterior appearance. Upon entering the new building the evidences of affectionate remembrance became at once apparent, and to be brief we will say that his new study and library had been elegantly furnished during his absence with a rich Brussels carpet, a revolving book case, and also a large upright book case, a beautiful library table in Eastlake design. All this furniture was of black walnut, finely finished. His easy chair was splendidly upholstered, and an elegant new couch was also invitingly located in the apartment. Upon the table was a check for $125, a present from the church to Mrs. Furbish, for a carpet for the suite of rooms upon the first floor of the house. This was an entire surprise to Mrs. F. The following short poem expressive of the feelings of the donors was found lying beside the check:

Let words be few that halting go,
By thoughts outrun, born of the heart;
And thought that int ns shall grow
Itself will speak, unhelped by art.

Our thoughts have grown to deeds, tho' small,
That speak themselves and bring good cheer.
These tokens are the voice of all,
A people to a pastor dear.

Art.

At Hewes' gallery may be seen some of Fred Kimball's latest efforts which will repay careful inspection. There are several studies which are particularly fine in feeling and excellent in tone—noticeably a road through the woods—and one of them: silver birches is very strong in drawing. But the gem is a scene near Brunswick or Topham. In the front are the marshy meadows that lie along the river, and close by the shore, a number of logs have drifted on the low bank, and assumed most natural positions. Through the rank grass a man is wending his way towards the old coal shed beyond, and a succession of irregular buildings stretch out along the head of the stream, while the village adjoins. The picture is admirable in coloring and drawing. It is full of poetry, of the situation, and alone far excels the majority of pictures in the fall exhibition of the New York Academy, while few, if any, in that exhibition are its superior. The frame seems especially adapted to it.

Mr. Hewes also shows a postil of a child's head by Mr. Cushing which shows a most artistic appreciation of color. The skin-tints are very fine, the hair soft and wavy, and the handling of the lace collar excellent.

There is and old landscape by Doughty, formerly a well known painter, which shows some solid coloring, and Mr. Hewes, himself exhibits some work in his best styles.

A Fine Animal.

George Blanchard, of the firm of Geo. Blanchard & Bro., Jersey breeders, of Portland, has purchased of Lyman A. Mills of Connecticut, the Jersey bull, Roseberry, a yearling of the famous Coomassie strain. His sire is imported Catons, son of that greatest of all Coomassie cows, Ona. His dam is a beautiful son of Rex. Roseberry arrived in Portland yesterday. He is a fine animal in every respect, very rich yellow skin, and possesses evidence of great butter merit. Messrs. Blanchard were the first breeders to introduce this strain into the State of Maine, Roseberry being the fourth investment. Caton's sons have never sold for less than $1,000, and his daughters cannot as yet, be bought, even at long prices.

Again in Trouble.

The Lawrence American, speaking of Daniel W. Proctor, who formerly practiced law in this city, says: "Daniel W. Proctor, Esq., a Manchester lawyer, recently came to this city. A few days ago he was called upon to defend a man named Tirrell, whom James W. Finney of West Andover charged with stealing five pigs which he had left in his custody. Justice Poor of Andover discharged Tirrell. Finney then had Proctor arrested for larceny. The case was tried in the police court, it being shown that Proctor had taken the pigs from Tirrell. He claimed, however, that he purchased them. He was found guilty and fined $20 and costs. He appealed."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

MINNIE HAUK.

Miss Minnie Hauk—or Mme. Hesse-Wartegg to be accurate—made her first appearance in Portland last evening, in the second concert of the Stockbridge course, before a magnificent audience, which completely filled City Hall. Mme. Hauk was no stranger to our musical people, to all of whom she was familiar by reputation, and to most of them by the opportunities that had been afforded them to hear her in other cities. She is a New York girl, whose family afterwards moved west and south, but finally returned to the metropolis, where Mme. Hauk studied under Errani, and appeared in opera under Maretzek's management. She then went to London, and appeared in opera there with success, following her engagement in that city with others in the principal European capitals. In 1878 Mme Hauk appeared in New York as Carmen, in Bizit's opera of that name, and it is in this character she has made her greatest successes, and has identified herself, on the stage, with the fortunes of the Spanish cigar-girl. Whoever has failed to see the prima-donna in that characterization has failed to see Minnie Hauk. It is not alone her singing of the role that captures the listener, but the acting, the expression, the Spanish atmosphere, so to speak, is vividly brought before the spectator.

Mme. Hauk, although her forte is opera, is nevertheless a very pleasing concert singer. She has a bright face, with expressive features, is pretty, and possesses an archness and vivacity that put her en rapport with the audience at once. The pretty petulence with which she tugged at her gloves, which resisted the attempt to remove them, brought down the house and made singer and audience better friends. Her voice is a rich soprano, and, while last night it did not astonish her hearers, nevertheless it gave great pleasure. Her rendering of the great Handelian air, "Angels ever bright and fair," while she has not the largeness of voice to give it that simple grandeur that many singers of less fame have been able to do,—was satisfactory. In response to the encore she succeeded much better, giving, with great archness and expression, La Sorrento, from the opera of "Piccolino," an unfamiliar work here. Her "Echo Song," with its display of the mezza voce, delighted her hearers as affording an opportunity, as stated in yesterday's PRESS, to display her command over her voice. The Parizi o Carn, from La Traviàta, was sung by the cantatrice and Mr. Fessenden with great dramatic expression and fervor, Mr. Fessenden especially sustaining his well established reputation. The Habanera, from "Carmen," was given with that peculiar witchery and force that enabled the uninitiated to get an idea of what the lady might be in the opera and pleased with its peculiar contra-danse measure, so identified with the Cuban music, and made a leading characteristic of Don Januario's song in "Der See Kadet," or "Royal Middy." To complete the display of her capabilities, Mme. Hauk gave the familiar song, "Beware," as an encore, and accompanying herself. Her costume, by Worth, was very elegant.

The support was good. Mr, Sternberg was a pleasing pianist. Mr. Fessenden's fine tenor was never heard to better advantage, and he was twice encored, responding with German lieds (which he sings with so much expression) and with one of Marston's songs. Signor and Signora Campanari's violin duetts were loudly applauded, and in response to an encore the former had to comply with "The Carnival."

HAZEL KIRKE.

To-night the Madison Square Theatre Company will present Hazel Kirke at Portland Theatre. We can add nothing to what we have already said in behalf of the play and company, and, from the sale of seats, it is evident there will be a large audience present. Grimmer's Orchestra will render the following programme:

Overture—Pique Dame ..... Suppe
Waltzes—Beautiful Rhine ..... Keler Bela
Selection—Girofle-Girofla ..... Lecocq
Galop—Heigh-ho (new) ..... Weingarten
Quadrille—Chicken Masks ..... Lumbye

WASHBURN'S GIGANTIC ENTERPRISE.

The sale of seats for Washburn's Last Sensation, to be given at the theatre next Saturday evening, will begin this morning. The show includes some of the most talented variety actors in the country. Mr. Washburn's reputation warrants the prediction that everything will be as represented. There are no cheap characteristics about the entertainment, which is pronounced first-class by everyone who has seen it.

NOTES.

The colored Tennesseean Singers gave their last concert in Congress Hall last night.

A lyric theatre is about to be opened in London, at which, with the exception of the authors and composers of the pieces, all persons taking an artistic part in the performances will be females.

There was a large audience at the free matinee for ladies and children at the Lyceum Theatre yesterday afternoon. The entertainment was first-class and everybody present enjoyed it.

A Friendly Visit.

Tuesday a party of ladies from Bosworth Relief Corps, No. 1, twenty-six in number, went to Gorham to visit one of their members, Mrs. H. S. Colesworthy, who welcomed them to her beautiful country home, where they found a bountiful supper awaiting, to which they did ample justice. The evening was spent in singing, speaking and in listening to recitations given by Mrs. Dennett and Mrs. Day. After thanking their hostess for her kindness, they started at 10 o'clock on their moonlight ride home, where they arrived safe, well pleased with their visit.

Y. M. C. A.

It costs but one dollar to become a member of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association. The advantages are great. Members with one friend are admitted free of charge to the French lectures at City Hall. The Association is arranging for other lectures and entertainments which will soon be announced. Ladies are received as members. Fifty-three new names and twenty renewals were received during October.

Fire in a Coal Yard.

Yesterday fire was discovered in a large pile of fine coal, containing about forty tons, located on the wharf at the foot of Wilmot street, and belonging to the Portland Stone Ware Company. Chief Cloyes detailed the hose carriage of No. 5 to look after it and they extinguished the flames by 6 o'clock. It was a smouldering, rather than a blazing fire, and it is thought the damage will be slight.

A. O. B.

The first anniversary ball of the Second Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was held at Grand Army Hall last evening. There were about sixty couples present and the occasion was very pleasant. The grand opening march was led in fine style by Captain Hartnett of the Montgomery Guards. Grimmer furnished the music and of course it was fine.

Potatoes.

The following extract from a letter in the Cultivator, written by a gentleman in Aroostook county, Maine, shows how the situation in regard to potatoes, is viewed from that standpoint:

"Many of our farmers carefully assorted their early rose potatoes, storing the apparently perfect specimens in their cellars. In a short time, however, such was the rapid development of the rot, the potatoes were taken out of storage and sold at low prices to the starch factories. At the present time there are less early rose potatoes stored here for market than has been the case for several years. In this county alone not less than 400,000 bushels of potatoes intended for city markets have been turned into the starch factories, rather than stored in the cellars of the farmers. From my standpoint in this great potato-growing section, potatoes must rule higher on account of the rot, unless the deficiency can be made up from a surplus crop in other sections of the country."

THE NAHUM CHAPIN.

Description of a New Rockland Vessel.

The following description of a vessel just launched at Rockland will be read with interest. The Nahum Chapin will be here within a few days:

Last June Cobb, Wight & Co. commenced the construction of a three masted schooner to be commanded by Capt. Seth Arey of Owl's Head. The keel was laid the last of June with John Mehan as master builder, and the work has been pushed rapidly on. A large crew of men was employed and last Saturday the handsome Nahum Chapin slid gracefully into the water and is now making her final preparations for what we hope will be a prosperous voyage. The vessel has an oak frame and pitch pine sealing. Her deck planks are of white pine 3½ inches thick. She was coppered on the stocks with 24 ounce Tauntoo metal, the coppering and caulking being done by Benj. Burton. The length of her keel is 145 feet, depth 15½, beam 35. Her tonnage is 597 gross. She has a single deck with with two hatches. The after hatch is 10 feet by 12, while the forward hatch is 20 feet by 12, and in four pieces, which can be unjointed so as to permit a locomotive, or as Capt. Arey expressed it it, "take a meeting house right in." The vessel has two cabins, forward and after. The forward cabin is 9x10, and 6½ feet high in clear. It is finished in black walnut, birch, ash cherry and burnished gilt mouldings. The joiner work was done by L. C. Hatch, and is an elegant job. The cabin was made by Fogler & Starrett of So. Hope and is a fine piece of manufacture. The painting and polishing was done by I. H. Burkett of Thomaston. The after cabin is 11 feet by 12 and is the most perfectly fitted cabin ever seen in this port. On each side of the after cabin are two large transoms, handsomely upholstered by Blake. The floor is covered with a handsome tapestry center surrounded by a border of inlaid woods. The cabin is provided with handsome mirrors, chairs and a costly writing secretary. Both cabins are provided with handsome hanging lamps. Opening from the after companionship is the lavatory and water closet. Opening from the after cabin are two libraries, one on each side, well filled with readable and instructive books. Opening to the left is the captain's stateroom, which is large and pleasant, covered with a tapestry carpets and containing the captain's berth which is four feet wide. An ordinary two feet bunk would'n't be a circumstance to the handsome, herculean captain. Opening from the forward cabin is the pantry fitted up in the same style of finish as the cabin, and containing crockery of all description. Crossing the cabin from the pantry we enter a spare room containing two berths. This room opens by another door into the after cabin. Adjoining this is the first mate's room on the port side, and opposite the second mate's room on the starboard side. The outside dimensions of the cabin are 24 by 28 feet. She has a roomy poop deck and on the starboard side is the quarters for the lazarette. The forward house is 18 by 21½ feet. The cook's galley is on the after starboard side, and is fitted up with all necessary cooking utensil. Julien Snow preside over this important department. On the port side is a large room used for storing spare sails. Forward of the galley and store-room is the forecastle 9 by 18 feet containing 6 berths. The masts are made spars without hoops and are 91 feet long, the work of Robert Benner. Her rigging is of American wire, the rigging work being done by John Longley. She has a square sail yard 18 feet long. She carries 3800 yards of sail. Her sails were made by A. C. Tibbett out of old Colony duck. She is painted black with a yellow bead. The outside painting was done by Hiram Ulmer. She carries two anchors weighing 2475 pounds each, furnished by Alden of Camden. She is furnished with Knowlton's patent windlass and capstan and the Emery & Cheney chain stopper. She has carved stern mouldings, trail boards and figure head, executed by J. E. Verrill. She draws when loaded 17 1-2 feet of water. She is a handsome shaped craft. Her model and moulds were furnished by Rideout and Pattee of Bath. The iron work was done by Noah Bridges, and the block work by G. F. Kaler & Co. Her bunting was presented by Nahum Chapin of Boston, in whose honor she was named. Among the owners are Capt. Arey, Cobb, Wight & Co., John S. Case and John Mehan. The Nahum Chapin is chartered to load lumber from Portland to Buenos Ayres.

Reed in Michigan.

A dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, from Grand Rapids, under date of the 27th ult., says: "The Hon. Thomas B. Reed of Portland Me., addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting here tonight, and made one of the most telling effective speeches of the campaign. He reviewed the past of the Democratic party, its change of attitude to the platforms of the Republicans after they have passed beyond them, and predicted that future Democratic platforms would proclaim the correctness of the present position of the Republicans. He reviewed the course of the Democrats in the last few years on the questions of finance, or the National banks, refunding bills, and reduction of taxation, and showed that business-men cannot safely trust the interests of the country in thir hands. He reviewed their attitude on sustaining tissue ballots and fraudulent returns in the South, and said that so long as such frauds exist the mission of the Republican party is not ended. He urged the people of Michigan not to catch the disease of fusion, and the consequent troubles that were exemplified in Maine. He urged a tariff for incidental protection as opposed to free trade or tariff for revenue only, and held his hearers, a mammoth audience to the close.

STATE NEWS.

ANDROSCOGGIN COUNTY.

Lewis Leavitt of Livermore this season raised 30 acres of sweet corn. He owns a canning factory and has put 215,000 cans of corn, the most of which has been sold to parties in New York city at a good price. Mr. Leavitt first began this business last year, and it has grown even beyond his expectations. Mr. L. raised 50,000 cans of the total amount put up. He is one of the enterprising citizens of that enterprising town.

AROOSTOOK COUNTY.

SAGADAHOC COUNTY.

The Times says a large fleet of vessels came into Bath, Sunday, mostly coal laden for the towns further up the Kennebec. The river may fairly be expected to close in a little more than a month, and coal dealers are looking alive. Considerable coal is carried by scows from the wharves to Topsham and Brunswick.

YORK COUNTY.

The county commissioners will shortly have a hearing on the petition of Mr. Hautress, who drives a stage between South Between South Berwick and York, and others, asking for the straightening, repairing and improving of the road from South Berwick to York Beach: an application for a new road through the Brixham district of York is understood to have failed, in consequence as is supposed of the probable granting of the other petition.

A man is wiser for his learning, and the sooner he learns that the only proper way to cure a Cough or Cold, is to use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the better he is off.

POETRY.

Eventide.

Tired it lies own bright charms, the golden day
Rests in the arms of evening; all is still;
Nor leaf, nor flower moves, lest the spell might break
Which holds the earth bound fast in twilight chains.
From yonder hawthorne tree, some leaf-hid bird
Breathes in the dying day a sweet farewell.
That, mingling with the stillness, seems to weave
Into the silent threads of memory.
Wild roses, since the dawn, have deeply blushed
Beneath the sun's warm kisses; now at eve
Fair sisters, rest in sweet, poise the air—
Rich incense offered to the queen of night!
For lo! a silvery light falls all air and,
As up the vaulted heaven a pale young moon
Climbs high, and higher still.
A low-voiced breeze,
Rising with balmy sighs from the hills,
Comes lingeringly adown the rocky glen,
Fleet-footed as elf nymphs, kiss each flower,
And whispers to the fair, sweet-eyed maiden!
Now careful thoughts and calm enter the heart,
And soothe the fevered brain; as from on high
A blessing falls on everything below.
Cool shades to evening—rest and peace to man.

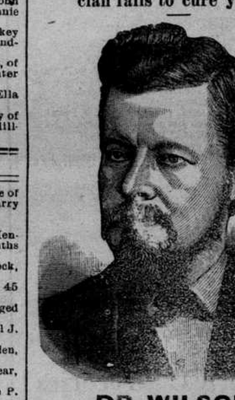
Don't Despair if every local physician fails to cure you.



DR. WILSON.

By request of his many patients and friends of Portland and Vicinity, has returned sooner than he intended and will be happy to see them in parlors

United States Hotel, until further notice.

To tell of his wonderful gifts and miraculous cures would appear egotistic—He only asks for a trial of his skill, he never experiments upon his patients.

His new method of diagnosing disease has no equal and is exclusively his own discovery; he never fails to explain every ache and pain in the most complicated disease without asking a word, when the patient may ask questions and every explanation is given without the slightest reservation.

success is unprecedented in curing 750 patients the last three months of his visit here.

He excels in Consumption, Female Complaints, Complicated disease, General debility, Chronic disease, and in all cases that defy skill of others.

Tape Worm removed in three hours.

Dr. W. practices every school treatment.

He prepares his own medicines that benefit everybody and his Tonics and Treatments are like itself.

He is a man of long and large experience and author of the Guide for Physicians and other works of interest.

He will deliver a course of Lectures in this city when due notice will be given.

His terms are within the reach of all; call and see him.

Consultations free from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Come early as hundreds regretted not calling before on my last trip. oct14d1m

GRATITUDE

DENVER, COL., Aug 29, 1882.

GENTS—I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude to you for the cure your Swift's Specific has effected in my case. I was afflicted with the horrible blood disease for three years, and after spending some time at the Hot Springs, considered my case a hopeless one. I used only one dozen small bottles of S. S. S., and there is not a sign of the disease remaining. My sores are all healed, my throat is entirely well; I am rid of that terrible disease. Being a drug clerk, I have seen so many hundreds of men dosed with Calomel, Iodide of Mercury and Iodide of Potash, until they were made complete wrecks, that I shudder to think of the misery which has been brought on the human family by the use of Mercurials for Blood Diseases. It is a crying shame that physicians will not acknowledge the merit of your GRAND Blood Medicine. Use my name as you wish. I refer you to my present employers, or to Messrs. Collins Bros., St. Louis. J. H. RAIF, Broadway Pharmacy, Denver, Col.

SSS

If you doubt, come to see us, and we will CURE YOU, or charge nothing! Write for particulars and a copy of the little book "Message to the Unfortunate Suffering." Ask any Druggist as to our standing.

☞$1,000 REWARD will be paid to any Chemist who will find, on analysis of 100 bottles of S. S. S., one particle of Mercury, Iodide of Potassium, or any Mineral substance. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Proprietors, Atlanta, Ga. oct27dtf
